Whoo Gives A Hoot??? Beautification Project
May-December 2015

The Owsley County Extension Service's Family & Consumer Sciences Advisory Council have designed a beautification project for our county to attempt to "spruce up" our community and we need everyone's help! The community will be a huge part of this endeavor. We are asking volunteer groups, families, youth clubs, churches and organizations, etc. to maintain an area of the park, public space or spaces out in the county that can be developed into a beautiful area with a little hard work and some flowers, shrubs, mulch, etc. We are asking inviting private business owners to participate. Each of the volunteer groups will maintain their delegated area throughout the year to help us make our county more beautiful than it already is naturally by keeping their space neat and nice. Each participating group, business, etc., will receive a sign for their area saying who is maintaining their area. Every two weeks, the designated areas will be judged to see who has maintained the best area. The winning space will get some extra signage in their spot for the 2 week period that determines them the winning area such as "Hoot, Hoot Hooray" or "Whoo-la, la! Look at your blooms!" or something similar to that playing within the theme of our school mascot. Then, we will put the owl statutes in the designated areas for these two weeks. Winners will also be announced on the Owsley County Extension Service Facebook page and will be sent to the local newspaper a well. If we have a lot of groups apply, then we might possibly have a public space winner, private space winner and school group winner. Youth, service learning and community service is the "in" thing right now as far as scholarships and awards are concerned. We hope to see a lot of school organizations apply.

With this in mind,

I hope that I have convinced you to join us. All you need to do is call the Owsley County Extension Service at (606)593-5109, message us on Facebook at the Owsley County Extension Service, or email me at nlucas@uky.edu and we will sign you up. You can either tell us which space that you want or we will assign you a space. You have to let us know that you plan on participating so that we can judge your spot. We are partnering with the Owsley County Fiscal Court to provide mulch for the public spaces that will be maintained. I hope to hear from you soon! " Whoo Gives A Hoot!" to help make our community more beautiful! More details to follow to those participating groups and individuals. Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin. Voluntary incentive program seeks to create new opportunities for landowners, elk hunters FRANKFORT, Ky. – Kentucky's elk zone encompasses more than 4.1 million acres in 16 counties and a new program developed by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources strives to make more of that land accessible to the public during the elk hunting seasons.

The Voucher Cooperator Elk Permit Program offers private landowners and lessees an incentive for volunteering to open their land for elk hunter access: an elk tag of their own. The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission proposed the framework for the program late last year.

Kentucky held its first elk hunt in 2001 when Kentucky Fish and Wildlife issued just 12 quota elk permits. The number of permits issued annually through the elk quota hunt draw has increased to 900 general permits and 10 youth permits as the herd has grown to an estimated 10,000 animals in the years since.

Hunter success rates remain high overall but some traditional hunting areas in the elk zone aren't holding the numbers they once did.

"We've got to have more places for people to go and essentially spread out hunting pressure," said John Hast, deer and elk program biologist with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We're seeing fewer elk on the traditional elk areas with lots of public land around them because they have just been hunted hard now for years. The elk essentially have been run off those open areas where you could routinely go out and see 100 elk in an evening and are using the woods a lot more."

The department has used Limited Entry Areas (LEA) in recent years to manage the harvest of elk on areas with large tracts of public land and heavy elk hunting pressure. But unless private land becomes available for elk hunter access, biologists believe the hunting pressure will be unsustainable on those areas.

Enter the Voucher Cooperator Elk Permit Program, which is separate from and does not change the landowner cooperator elk permit system already in place. Any landowner or lessee with at least 100 acres in the elk zone would be eligible to enroll in the new incentive program.

Each enrolled voucher property would have a set limit of hunters allowed on the land at any point in the elk hunting season. That number would stem from biologists' recommendations, voucher cooperator input, and the number of elk using the area.

"Accessing some of that timbered land around the traditional elk hunting areas, I think, would provide productive hunting," Hast said.

In exchange for volunteering to allow elk hunting access on their property, the voucher cooperator would accumulate points toward a Kentucky elk tag for each elk successfully harvested on their property by drawn hunters.

The voucher cooperator would be credited two points for bull elk and one point for cow elk harvested on their property. Points do not expire and may be accrued over multiple years. Upon accumulating 20 points, the landowner or lessee of the property would receive one voucher elk permit, which would be transferable and valid for either sex on any land the landowner or lessee owns or leases in the elk zone the next season. Any points left over would remain as a balance for the landowner or lessee to put toward a future tag.

Voucher cooperators would have the option to close elk hunting access during other hunting seasons, such as deer and bear seasons. And enrolling doesn't preclude the voucher cooperator from inviting others to hunt the land. However, only elk harvested by hunters signed up to hunt on the property would count toward the point total.

"Each landowner will have tons of control over how things are done," Hast said.

Beyond the incentive to landowners and lessees, and expanded opportunity for hunters, biologists envision the new program spurring habitat improvement on private land and helping mitigate elk nuisance issues while fostering relationships between landowners and elk hunters.

"Landowners out there want to be in the elk game," Hast said. "This program involves them in the process while they work toward what is one of the most sought-after hunting opportunities in Kentucky."

Interested landowners and lessees may contact Hast by calling Kentucky Fish and Wildlife at 1-800-858-1549 to learn more about the Voucher Cooperator Elk Permit Program.

PREACHERS POINT by Tim Johnson

CHIVALRY AND HONOR

The other day I held the door open for a woman. She gave me a big lovely smile and a hearty, "Thank you!" Jokingly I responded with, "Chivalry is not dead."

She then turned to me and said, "Honey, that word is not even in the dictionary anymore." I looked; the word is still in Merriam-Webster. In fact, the two definitions my Merriam-Webster phone app gives for chivalry are:

* "The system of values (such as loyalty and honor) that knights in the Middle Ages were expected to follow."

* "An honorable and polite way of behaving especially toward women."

Estimating the woman's age at around thirty, I began to wonder how the men in her life have treated her. The actions of her dad, boy-friends, husband and men, in general, have brought her to the conclusion that chivalry is not only dead, but long forgotten. How sad.

I was never taught to open the door for a woman walking up behind me, but I learned it from my father. Just observing him when I was a child and little comments he made. As simple as, "Let her go first" was a father's way of educating his son to show honor and respect to the ladies.

A fascinating fact about the Bible is that it never tells a woman to love her husband, but it does tell men to love their wives. Ephesians 5:25, "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it."

Ephesians 5:25 and the beginning of John 3:16 ("For God so loved the world that he gave . . .") show us the real definition of love. Love is giving yourself to someone or something else. Many relationships are doomed from the beginning because one or both parties are looking to see what they can get out of the relationship instead of what they can give to it.

Little things, long after the luster of the bedroom has faded like opening a door or doing a chore around the house, can do wonders with a relationship and these little things will show love. However, many men's hearts are thinking, "What do I want" as opposed to "How can I help her?"

Men are to honor their wives (1 Peter 3:7). Men, place your wives on a pedestal; she is a gift from God and deserves to be cherished.

By giving ourselves to our wives we are showing our love for them, remember, "For God so loved the world that he gave . . ."

We give ourselves by showing respect. Small things, like opening a door or helping with the chores, to large things as supporting her decision of either working outside the home or staying home with the kids, will show your wife you respect her.

We give ourselves by trusting in someone. Trust is something earned, but the Bible also tells us that love, "thinketh no evil" (1 Corinthians 13:5). Do not make accusations without proof and there isn't this constant backbiting of he said, she said.

Giving of ourselves will include hopes that include both husband and wife. When talking to couples wanting to get married, I'll ask what their plans for the future are. "We want to grow old together" is a standard answer. Well, there is a lot of time; in fact most of your time on this earth, will be spent between the ages of 25-75. What are your hopes for the in between? Both husband and wife will need to sacrifice, and both husband and wife will need help from the other. However, the sacrifices of life will be fruitless if the hopes of the two are not in sync. If he wants to retire in the country and she wants a house in town, then the two have different hopes that will cause the two to work in opposite directions.

One last thought, husbands, never downgrade your wife, not in public, nor in private. If she makes a wrong decision with the kids, support her choice and talk to her about it when the kids are not around. If she does something stupid in public shield her from the ridicule and take the blame yourself. Christ was made sin for us (2 Corinthians 5:21) and as husbands we are to give ourselves to our wives just as Christ gave himself for the church (Ephesians 5:25).

Come on guys; let's show women that chivalry is still in the dictionary.

Outdoor Truths

by Gary Miller

I noticed my actions during a turkey hunt a few mornings ago. I had not heard a bird gobble for a few days, so there I was waiting again for that familiar sound. I always arrive just before daylight and make my way to a central place in order to be heard should I do a shock call and in order that I might hear the location of a bird should it choose to respond. Or sometimes I just wait silently and let the birds talk on their own. This was my position the other morning. I just stood and listened and then I sat and listened. As the sun began to rise, listening would now have to be filtered through other noises that might easily drown out the specific call I was listening for. Sometimes those other sounds are known to get a tom talking especially the caw of a crow or the shout of a rooster. Nothing seemed to stir the angst of any gobbler that morning. So I just waited as the morning grew older and refused the urge to muddy the air with my attempt to locate a bird. I decided to go to the place of my last encounter. I did so, called, and was met with the gobble I had come to hear. It was there all the time – silent. I was there all the time as well – patient. I wonder what would have happened if my silence had been replaced with noise and my patience had been replaced with activity. I’m pretty sure I know. As I stood atop that hill that morning I was reminded that many times by call to God has seemingly been met with silence. Many of those times I equated silence with absence and left too soon. Sometimes I determined that His silence meant that I needed to call louder and more frequent. This too I misinterpreted. God’s silence is not His absence and it is also not His desire to hear more from me in order for Him to be convinced. Most of the time His silence is a test to see how my faith in Him has progressed. Not that He needs to know (He already does), but so that I might know if my trust is based on sight and sound or simply by the promises He has already given me. What should I do when I perceive His silence? I should do exactly what I did the other morning. Go to the place of my last encounter and wait.

Special Board Meeting

2012 they were spending more than they were taking in and that is the trend now looking at 2012 to 2014. Dr. Bobrowski stated that you could see that they were curbing that trend and spending less as they moved to 2014. Ms. Sandlin stated that it was not as bad as 2014. Dr. Bobrowski stated that in 2014, they spent roughly $17, 503 more than they brought in. Ms. Sandlin stated that this was only General Fund. The next chart Ms. Sandlin showed the board members was for 2015 – 2018, the projected charts, that would show the path they were headed on if they followed the trend they currently were on. She stated the bottom line was the carry forward money they were using. She stated that this year they had a little under $600,000 to start off the school year. Ms. Sandlin told the board members if they continued on their current trend by the 2018, they will be down to less than $200,000. “And I know,” stated Ms. Sandlin, “ If Jerry (McIntosh) were here he would talk about how, at this rate, in several more years after that we’re not going to be able to make payroll.” Ms. Sandlin stated this was based on the averages from 2012 to 2014, she used to project this average. Ms. Sandlin took the same numbers from the same chart and from 2015-2016 and cut the spending in ½ and at the end of 2017 equaled out. If we can equal out, our carry forward money would be ½ of what it is now.

Mr. Gary Deaton, board member asked where they were loosing the money from? Ms. Sandlin stated that's the next chart. Student attendance and SEEK money. In 2014 we were at 92% attendance to get Average Daily Attendance. SEEK Funding was also projected on the chart.

Peggy Edwards talked with the board members about the 2% raise and how they had put this in the budget to see how it would effect the budget. This raise would be approximately $80,000 plus approximately $20,000 fringe benefits. Mr. Scotty Combs, board member asked about grant money, such as “Race to the top money” He asked where that money was going and if it was helping. Ms. Edwards stated that that money, which they called Title II moneys or grants was decreasing and all of the previous salaries that were being paid out of there were now being paid out of general fund. Ms. Edwards stated that for example, Math Achievement Grant was no longer being funded so the teacher salary that was being paid out of that grant would now have to be paid out of general fund.

Mr. Combs, board member asked about the coordinator positions that have had been through: special funds that have been hired for 3-5 years. He asked if they were wisely spending their dollars by moving our people over into these positions because then we have to keep them. He stated that if you bring someone in brand new, then in 3 years then when the program is gone, then that person is gone. He stated that if in 5 years if you have 5 of your own people in the programs and they are gone, then you have 5 tenured people and 5 positions not gone. He stated that he didn't want anybody to loose their job, but we need to look at what it will affect in 3-5 years from now.

Mr. Deaton, board member asked what was the projected retirement for this school year. Dr. Bobrowski stated that they had 1 teacher retiring that they would not fill the slot that would help them around $55,000 in the general fund. Dr. Bobrowski talked about looking at shuffling some stuff around and some possibilities.

Mr. Sylvia Havicus asked if the class sizes would go up? Dr. Bobrowski stated that the high school where they have their core classes and other kids that have virtual classes but they are not in their classrooms. He stated that even as it is projected, their numbers should not go up in the classrooms.

A Simple Man

“Every-one at the table was quiet until we looked at each other and burst into laughter,” Clarence laughed. “I can still see the look on my mother’s face and remember what she said to us,” as he continued to relay his story to us. “Mother asked which one of us was willing to give up our piece of hot cornbread for that starving dog that just ran through our house?” “Mother smiled and said that was the smartest and most desperate dog she had ever seen!” “That started us laughing all over again,” Clarence continued. Clarence was laughing out loud as he told us that his mother told them all that day that she bet they never forgot about the cornbread thief on four legs! Here he was at ninety years of age retelling the story from his childhood. The evening was so enjoyable that it became late before anyone realized it. When the three of them arrived at her Daddy’s house, Clarence asked Jake to come in for a cup of coffee before he went home. As they were enjoying their coffee, the phone rang. It was unusual to get a call late at night. Liza Jane answered the phone and listened as the woman on the other end relayed a message to her. Liza handed the phone to her father and motioned for Jake to come outside on the porch with her. Jake got the message right away and they gave Clarence privacy to take the call. Liza shared with Jake was the message had been. They sat quietly on the porch until Clarence joined them outside. He didn’t speak right away as he sat in his usual chair. When he did speak he said, “I have expecting this call for several years.” “My friend Buck and I have outlived everyone we served with in the War and most all of our family members,” he stated matter of factly. “Now I am the sole survivor,” he said. “I will surely miss my good friend and our weekly conversations,” he sighed. “I told his daughter that she will be receiving the letter I mailed to him the other day that contains pictures for him.” “She may choose to display them for his memorial service.” “It’s okay because we have talked that weekend to death over the years and it’s time we laid that story to rest.” “I am aware that every living person and everything in nature has a time to live and a time to die, no one can deny that.” “We often discussed which one of us would die first, so I guess Buck went first.” “I would like to attend his funeral if you would so kind as to go with me,” he asked his daughter Liza. “They are not having his funeral until next week so out of town people can make it in.” he continued. “I will be happy to take you Dad,” Liza reached for her father’s hand as she spoke.

Owsley County Fiscal Court Meeting

At the regular Owsley County Fiscal Court Meeting on Monday, May 11, 2015 all officials were present except Owsley Clerk Shana Oliver. A motion was made by Zeke Little, Jr, seconded by Mike Thomas to dispense of the reading of the minutes.

Mildred Hudson, County Treasurer reviewed the County Treasurer's report. Balances as of April 30, 2015: General fund - $162,317.37; Road - $268,691.12; Jail - $5,168.30; L.G.E.A - $11,171.79; Solid Waste - $58,956.54; Parks & Recreation - $2,025.40; LGEDF - $110,250.20 for a total cash balance of $626,634.72.

A discussion was had on the quarterly financial statement that is faxed into the state local finance officer. Judge Turner stated that the magistrates would be getting one of them each quarter before they sent them out. No motion was made.

The 2015-2016 first reading of the budget was the next item on the agenda. Judge Turner ask the magistrates to take it home and look over it and feel free to make revisions and bring them back to the next fiscal court meeting. Judge Turner stated that if he had any carryover from this year he wanted to go ahead and pay bills that were owed with it. The first bill was the $25,000 audit bill and any other bill they need to pay. In the new budget, Judge Turner stated that real property would be about the same at $104,000. Insurance License tax went up so he increased up to $205,000; the 911 telephone fee decreased $13,686; Workers comp went down; Excess fees for the county clerk - reduced to $20,000. Judge Turner stated that those were the biggest changes. He also stated that the employees had a $600 increase in salaries.

One of the employees that was hired for the position in the solid waste department during the last fiscal court meeting declined the position. Judge Cale Turner recommended Kevin Gattis. He stated that he had checked his references and they were all good. A motion was made by Zeke Little, seconded by Tim Bishop to hire Kevin Gattis, motion carried.

A motion was made to close a section of Hollan Road from the gate that starts at Todd and Marquisa Little's property. This was advertised in the local paper. The motion was made by Zeke Little, seconded by Mike Thomas, motion carried.

Judge Turner stated that Owsley County had qualified on the April FEMA at +30,000. There should be a kick off in the next couple of days. He stated that the county did not qualify for the snow in February but since a neighboring county did qualify that the county could contest and that the county should have a good chance to win. I have sent an email requesting that we be considered.

Judge Turner stated that he had been working on the Solid Waste Code Enforcement Board. He stated that he would have a list of names to present to the magistrates at the June fiscal court meeting. Magistrate Little stated that he still had people saying that they were not getting bills for garbage. Judge Turner ask the magistrates to call the office and let them know who they were. He stated that Jan Michael Bishop had been riding the trucks and taking names of everyone that was not paying. He had also found people that had dumpsters and were paying $12.00 and the dumpsters would be removed shortly.

Judge Turner stated that the Sheriff's Office grant had been approved to receive two new club cab cruisers. The fiscal court had agreed to match $12,000 and he was planning on going through KACO and get one of their loans at 3.5% for the match money. Sheriff Shouse ask if he could borrow money through KACO because he was depending on his Sheriff's fee money and he did not have the money to match. He had over $6000 but needed $13,000. Judge Turner stated he would check and he told Sheriff Should they would make sure that they would make sure they got the grant.

Judge Turner

stated that 27 gallons of paint had already been paid for to use for the picnic tables at the county park and it had already been picked up. He also stated that there were several cracks in the blacktop and sealer needs to be applied. He stated that they would need to block off that part of the park while it was applied. He stated he wanted to continue to upgrade the park.

Magistrate Mike Thomas asked if they had started mowing the roads. Road foreman James P. McIntosh stated they had but very limited because they were still working on the roads.

Magistrate Little asked if they had started using the blacktop machine. Judge Turner stated not at this time because they were still changing out drainpipes.

Magistrate Thomas asked about a hole at Fox Hunter's Knob if it was on the County or State and could be fixed. Forman McIntosh said it was state.

Magistrate Bishop ask about helping a family with their road in his district, road 2025. Judge Turner stated that it shouldn't be a problem if there was a right of way since there was a cemetery up in there. County Attorney McIntosh told them to call his office next week and make an appointment and bring their documents and he would tell them what they needed to help the county establish a county road.
